NEW QUESTION: 2

What is a cause for unicast flooding?

- A. When PIM snooping is not enabled, unicast flooding occurs on the switch that interconnects the PIM-enabled routers.
- B. A man-in-the-middle attack can cause the ARP cache of an end host to have the wrong MAC address. Instead of having the MAC address of the default gateway, it has a MAC address of the man-in-the-middle. This causes all traffic to be unicast flooded through the man-in-the-middle, which can then sniff all packets.
- C. Unicast flooding occurs when multicast traffic arrives on a Layer 2 switch that has directly connected multicast receivers.
- D. Forwarding table overflow prevents new MAC addresses from being learned, and packets destined to those MAC addresses are flooded until space becomes available in the forwarding table.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Causes of Flooding

The very cause of flooding is that destination MAC address of the packet is not in the L2 forwarding table of the switch. In this case the packet will be flooded out of all forwarding ports in its VLAN (except the port it was received on). Below case studies display most common reasons for destination MAC address not being known to the switch.

Cause 1: Asymmetric Routing

Large amounts of flooded traffic might saturate low-bandwidth links causing network performance issues or complete connectivity outage to devices connected across such low-bandwidth links

Cause 2: Spanning-Tree Protocol Topology Changes

Another common issue caused by flooding is Spanning-Tree Protocol (STP) Topology Change Notification (TCN). TCN is designed to correct forwarding tables after the forwarding topology has changed. This is necessary to avoid a connectivity outage, as after a topology change some destinations previously accessible via particular ports might become accessible via different ports. TCN operates by shortening the forwarding table aging time, such that if the address is not relearned, it will age out and flooding will occur

Cause 3: Forwarding Table Overflow

Another possible cause of flooding can be overflow of the switch forwarding table. In this case, new addresses cannot be learned and packets destined to such addresses are flooded until some space becomes available in the forwarding table. New addresses will then be learned. This is possible but rare, since most modern switches have large enough forwarding tables to accommodate MAC addresses for most designs.

NEW QUESTION: 3

A bank considers issuing new capital to increase its Tier 1 capital levels. Which of the following financial instruments would most likely to be considered?

- A. Short-term callable debt
- B. Convertible preferred shares
- C. Long-term and callable debt convertible to equity
- D. Short-term debt convertible to non-cumulative preferred shares

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 4

Which describes the non-blocking architecture deployed in M-series switches?

- A. Memory based operations which fence partitions of memory into bit-buckets for data delivery
- B. Allows memory segmentation across the s/bar platform permitting data re-direction based on ASIC availability
- C. Switch operations which move data across the bus into CMM and finally to MPC for delivery
- D. Allows frames to be sent to destination ports based on the receiving ports availability

Answer: D
